

ABSTRACT

A push-up bra for wear by a user, having a pair of breasts. The push-up bra includes a pair of cups each having 5 a periphery. A flange extends outwardly from a portion of the periphery of each cup. The flange has a first surface, a side tab, and an upper tab. The first surface of the flange has an adhesive lining for easily attaching around the breasts of the user. A clasp is attached to a portion of the flange
10 between each breast and holds the cups securely in position against the breasts. The side tabs and upper tabs are pulled taughtly to lift the breasts and enhance cleavage.